In November 2021 many countries at the UN annual summit on climate change in Glasgow – the 26th Conference of the Parties (COP26) – made promises to help Earth. They signed agreements to end deforestation and cut methane emission levels by 30 percent by 2030. Presidents of global companies also attended COP26. Jeff Bezos, the founder of Amazon, made a speech on Tuesday. He promised to give $2 billion to help nature. He said the money would restore landscapes to their more natural state. He also wanted to transform food systems to make food production more sustainable. In 2020, he set up The Bezos Earth Fund. This is a $10-billion project to help fight climate change. In September 2021, this fund gave $1 billion to help threatened indigenous peoples.

Jeff Bezos decided to give more money to protect the planet after going into space in July. He said that looking at Earth from space had made him understand the importance of helping our planet. He added: "Looking back at Earth from up there, the atmosphere seems so thin, the world so ... fragile." In his COP26 speech, Mr Bezos claimed his trip into space changed his feelings about our planet. He said: "I was told that seeing Earth from space changes the lens through which you see the world, but I was not prepared for how much that would be true". He insisted that it was time for all countries and corporations to act. He said: "In this critical year ... we must all stand together to protect our world".

This is BBC Europe radio news. We begin with World's Sport news. German runner, Lukas Jens, has won one of the world's toughest marathon races retracing the steps of a legendary Greek soldier, who ran from Athens to Sparta. Jens finished the 246 km course from Athens City to Sparta in 24 hours, 20 minutes, and 39 seconds to win for a second year in a row. Frenchman Jean-Jacques Moro came in second with a time of 25 hours, 3 minutes and 30 seconds.

More than 270 runners from some 30 nations took part in this year's race, which began at the foot of the Acropolis early on Friday morning. Runners were given just 36 hours to complete the route from Athens to Sparta. The modern equivalent of the race was started in 1982 by British soldier John Foden. It takes participants along highways and dirt tracks and over mountains.

Next we turn to the International Book Exhibit in Madrid. Bulgarian publishers and authors together with the National Book Centre are on the road to Spain in order to participate in “Liber”, the twenty third international book exhibit, which takes place from October 12th to October 15th. Bulgaria will be the honoured country at the exhibit this year: 42 Bulgarian publishers and 15 Bulgarian authors will aim to promote Bulgarian literature to the international book markets.

Now, a news item related to a cultural event held in Bulgaria. The Seventh International Puppet Theatre Festival “Puppets and Friends” in Veliko Tarnovo, which started on 10th October, features puppet and mime theatre companies from several European countries. This festival is the only event in Bulgaria to be financed by the Bulgarian Ministry of Culture and the local municipality.
